

Industrial PC: Do all the LAN ports have separate MAC Addresses?

Yes, in general.

Without special notice each available LAN port is driven by a separate Network Interface Chip, so there are different MAC Addresses.

If one network interface would connect to an internal Switching Hub, this would be part of the specifications. And in consequence it is written on the products web page.

Please check the web page of your product.

Â

Unique solution ID: #1082

Author: Support

Last update: 2011-06-28 15:45